

Flynn and Jasper

Follow the antics of Flynn and Jasper as they head to school but become very easily distracted, in this easy-to-read graphic chapter book.

The boys find there are consequences to being late as they try the patience time and again of their teacher and principal.

Is there really a big pink butt in Mr Moffat's garden? Do they solve the mystery of the ghost in the old house window? Will they include a young boy into their group who is leads a very different life?

The book looks into the everyday lives of these two young boys, and their mischief created the base for the most popular stories the author would tell during her travels into remote area schools as an oral storyteller.

The book is written and aimed at encouraging boys to read but girls love the stories too.

Extract from Chapter one:

“The rain has washed away Mr Moffatt's garden and there's giant's butt sticking up out of the soil.” Jasper and Flynn burst out together.

“A what?”

shouted Principal Tait?

“There really is a butt poking out of the ground in Mr Moffat's veggie garden and we think a giant is living there.” Said Flynn looking very determined.

Call the police!

Call the army!”

Shouted Jasper.
